Al Qaeda's No. 3 Arrested

Capture in Pakistan hailed as break in hunt for bin Laden

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistani commandos nabbed a senior al Qaeda leader, described by U.S. officials as the group's No. 3 operative, after a shootout at one of his barren hideouts. Jubilant Pakistani officials said Wednesday his arrest would help in the hunt for Osama bin Laden.

President Bush hailed the capture of Abu Farraj al-Libbi, al Qaeda's alleged operational planner, as a "critical victory" that "removes a dangerous enemy who is a direct threat to America and for those who love freedom."

Al-Libbi, a native of Libya who's thought to use at least five aliases, is believed responsible for planning attacks in the United States, a U.S. counterterrorism official said.

U.S. officials described the arrest as the greatest blow to al Qaeda in more than two years — though al-Libbi is not on the FBI's list of most-wanted terrorists. Al-Libbi is a confidant of bin Laden and was behind only Egyptian Ayman al-Zawahri and the al Qaeda chief himself in the terror organization's hierarchy, they said.

Al-Libbi was also Pakistan's most-wanted man, the main suspect behind two 2003 assassination attempts against President Gen. Pervez Musharraf — and is likely to face the death penalty in Pakistan if convicted.

Information Minister Sheikh Rashid Ahmed said the arrest has already produced a treasure trove of intelligence and predicted more breakthroughs to come. PAUL HAVEN (AP)

MARINES

The Few. The Proud. The Misunderstood.

Police were called Sunday to a church in Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., after members thought a group of Marines were "skinheads" intimidating parishioners. On April 24, the three soldiers, with closely shaven military haircuts, entered the church during Spanish language Mass. Near the end of services, they walked to the front and silently scanned the crowd. This unsettled some churchgoers, who were unaware the men were Marines, and they called the police when the men returned. It turned out that the soldiers had just come back from Iraq and were trying to locate a friend at the church. (AP)

DINING

Health Codes, Schmealth Codes

An Australian restaurant has been fined $30,000 for, among other things, painting over a dead rat on the floor instead of cleaning it up, the Courier Mail reported. Jo's Brasserie, in Gold Coast, was raided in August by health officials, who found the rodent covered in thick red paint. Also discovered: Fungus, cockroaches, rusty stoves and, of course, not-dead rats. Employees also told the authorities that meals were sometimes taken out of the trash and served, the newspaper reported. In one incident, a customer was served a fish that had not been gutted or cleaned, officials said. But despite the heavy penalty for its gross violations of food standards, the eatery is still open.

Hold Your Fire

An elderly man who mistook firefighters for burglars as they arrived to douse a small blaze at his apartment complex Tuesday threatened to shoot them with a gas-powered pistol, said police in St. Poelten, Austria.

The confrontation began after firefighters knocked on doors of the housing complex after rushing there to extinguish the fire. When they alerted the 79-year-old, he shouted, "Go away or I'll shoot!" Authorities confiscated the pistol and two other loaded gas weapons, powered with CO₂ cartridges that shoot projectiles. (AP)

Mistrial Declared in Iraq Abuse Case

Military judge rejects England's guilty plea after Graner testifies

FORT HOOD, TEXAS | A military judge Wednesday threw out Pfc. Lynndie England's guilty plea to abusing Iraqi detainees at Abu Ghraib prison, saying he was not convinced the Army reservist who appeared in some of the most notorious photos in the scandal knew her actions were wrong at the time.

The mistrial marks a stunning turn in the case and sends it back to square one.

The case will be reviewed again by Fort Hood's commander, Lt. Gen. Thomas Metz, who will decide what charges, if any, England should face. If she is charged, the case would go back to a military equivalent of a grand jury hearing, an Article 32 proceeding, prosecution spokesman Capt. Cullen Sheppard said.

SURPRISE TURN: Pfc. Lynndie England, center, leaves the court at Fort Hood, Texas, on Wednesday with one of her attorneys after the judge declared a mistrial.

The military judge, Col. James Pohl, entered a plea of not guilty for England on a charge of conspiring with Pvt. Charles Graner Jr. to maltreat detainees and a related charge.

The mistrial came after Graner testified as a defense witness at England's sentencing hearing that pictures he took of England holding a naked prisoner on a leash at Abu Ghraib were meant to be used as a legitimate training aid for other guards.

When England pleaded guilty Monday, she told the judge she knew that the pictures were being taken purely for the amusement of the guards.

Pohl said her statement and Graner's could not be reconciled.

"You can't have a one-person conspiracy," the judge said.

Under military law, the judge could formally accept her guilty plea only if he was convinced that she knew at the time that what she was doing was illegal. T.A. BADGER (AP)

Jackson Prosecutors Rest Case

SANTA MARIA, CALIF. | Prosecutors rested their case Wednesday in the Michael Jackson trial after more than two months of dramatic testimony in which they sought to prove that the pop star molested a teenage cancer patient and conspired to hold his family captive at his fairy-tale estate.

The defense immediately filed a motion for a judgment of acquittal on grounds the prosecution did not prove its case. Superior Court Judge Rodney S. Melville said the motion would be heard first thing Thursday.

District Attorney Tom Sneddon closed his case pending the judge's decisions on whether to admit various items that had been shown to the jury but had not yet been formally entered into evidence. The judge said the prosecution could reopen its case later depending on his decisions. LINDA DEUTSCH (AP)

Pentagon Analyst Charged in Leak

Franklin arrested for disclosing secret data to pro-Israel group

WASHINGTON | A Pentagon analyst was arrested Wednesday and charged with giving top secret information about potential attacks against U.S. forces in Iraq to employees of a pro-Israel group.

Larry Franklin, a 58-year-old Air Force Reserves colonel who once worked for the Pentagon's No. 3 official, is the first person charged in a long-running investigation into whether Israel improperly obtained U.S. secrets.

Twice last year FBI agents searched the offices of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, a lobbying organization influential on U.S.-Israeli relations. It was once thought AIPAC might be a target of the probe, but that's not the case, according to two knowledgeable people. They spoke only on condition of anonymity because the probe is still under way.

There is no allegation of espionage by Franklin. He faces a single count of disclosing classified defense information, which is punishable by up to 10 years in prison. MARK SHERMAN (AP)

New Link in Dinosaur Chain Found

Unusual species helps decode how creatures became plant-eaters

Caught in the act of evolution, the odd-looking, feathered dinosaur was becoming more vegetarian, moving away from its meat-eating ancestors.

It had the built-for-speed legs of meat-eaters, but was developing the bigger belly of plant-eaters. It had already lost the serrated teeth needed for tearing flesh.

"I doubt seriously this animal could cut a steak with that mouth," said Utah state paleontologist James Kirkland, one of those describing the animal, based on bones found in east-central Utah.

The scientists dubbed it Falcarius utahensis. Bones from hundreds or maybe thousands of these dinosaurs were discovered at a dig site near the town of Green River. Nobody knows why they gathered there or what killed them, Kirkland said.

Falcarius ate plants, but its bones show the transition from its carnivorous ancestors was still in progress.

An artist's conception depicts the bird-like dinosaur Falcarius utahensis. MIKE SKREPNICK/AP

All plant-eating dinosaurs were ultimately descended from a meat-eater, and switchovers to plant-eating occurred several times. The newly discovered species, which lived 125 million years ago, could help scientists understand details of how the changeovers took place.

Analysis revealed that Falcarius was the earliest known member of a bizarre-looking group of plant-eaters called therizinosaurs. Found mostly in Asia, the barrel-bodied creatures waddled upright like Godzilla or "a pot-bellied bear," Kirkland said. MALCOLM RITTER (AP)

TSA to Seek More Data From Airline Passengers

Full name, birthday to be requested in new screening program

WASHINGTON | Airline passengers soon will be asked to provide their full names and birth dates when they buy tickets.

In coming weeks, the Transportation Security Administration plans to require airlines to solicit the information. Passengers do not have to provide it, though if they don't there's a better chance they'll have to undergo more stringent screening at the airport, Justin Oberman, the TSA official in charge of the program, said Wednesday.

Oberman said having passengers' full names and birth dates will make it less likely that they'll be confused with people who are known or suspected terrorists.

The request is part of the TSA's effort to build a new screening program, called Secure Flight.

The program is supposed to work by transferring airline passengers' name records — which can include address, phone number and credit card data — to a government database. The computer would flag names on the watch list and identify those who would be asked to go through extra screening. (AP)

Body of Emmett Till to Be Exhumed

Autopsy planned as probe of 1955 racial slaying moves forward

CHICAGO | A half-century after the murder of 14-year-old Emmett Till shocked a nation and galvanized the civil rights movement, his body will be exhumed as authorities attempt to determine who killed him, the FBI said Wednesday.

The Justice Department announced plans last year to reopen the Till investigation, citing several pieces of information, including a recent documentary.

Till was abducted from his uncle's home in Mississippi in 1955, reportedly for whistling at a white woman. His mutilated body was later found by fishermen in the Tallahatchie River. It was unrecognizable and his mother was only able to identify the teen because she recognized a ring on his finger.

In Mississippi, District Attorney Joyce Chiles of Greenville said that she hopes the autopsy will positively identify Till as well as lead to a cause of death.

During a trial that ultimately led to the acquittal of two men on charges they murdered Till, defense attorneys suggested that the body was not Till's and that Till was still alive. DON BABWIN (AP)

Bomber Kills 60 at Iraq Police Center

Sunni militant group claims attack in Irbil

IRBIL, IRAQ | A suicide attacker slipped into line at a police recruitment center in this usually tranquil northern Kurdish city and blew himself up Wednesday, leaving the streets slick with blood in the deadliest insurgent attack in more than two months, police said. Sixty Iraqis were killed and 150 wounded.

A Sunni militant group, Ansar al-Sunnah Army, claimed responsibility, saying the attack was revenge for Kurdish cooperation with U.S. forces. Ansar al-Sunnah is believed to be a breakaway faction of Ansar al-Islam, a Kurdish-led group with links to al Qaeda. It has claimed responsibility for numerous attacks, including twin suicide bombings targeting Kurds in Irbil that killed 109 people in 2004.

In other developments, a suicide car bomber attacked an Iraqi army checkpoint in Baghdad late Wednesday. There were conflicting accounts of the casualties. Police said nine soldiers, while the U.S. military said 15 soldiers were killed.

Two American soldiers were killed in separate roadside bombings in Baghdad on Tuesday, the U.S. military said. And in west-

IN THE SEARCH FOR insurgent leader Abu Musab Zarqawi, the U.S. military is examining recent reports he was present at a mosque and a hospital, as well as a near-miss at a checkpoint, and a possibility that the militant leader may be ill or wounded, officials said Wednesday.

U.S. military authorities were quoted this month as saying that Zarqawi had left medical information about himself on a laptop computer that was subsequently seized. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | American troops and Afghan police killed about 20 rebels and captured six during a battle in the mountains of southern Afghanistan, U.S. officials said Wednesday, the latest in a string of clashes in an insurgent hotbed near the Pakistani border.

Six soldiers and five policemen were reported wounded in several hours of fighting Tuesday.

Polio Case in Indonesia Traced Back to Nigeria

Islamists in Nigeria called vaccination part of anti-Muslim plot

LAGOS, NIGERIA | Two years after radical Islamic preachers told parents to refuse to have their children vaccinated against polio for fear it was part of a U.S. plot against Muslims, the repercussions are still being felt: A Nigerian strain of the virus that causes the disease has cropped up as far away as Indonesia.

Indonesia on Wednesday confirmed a second case of polio, but authorities who were confronting the disease for the first time in a decade said they were confident of preventing a major outbreak.

Fifteen other countries where polio had been eradicated have been re-infected from Nigeria since 2003. The U.N. health agency says the world still has a chance to meet a deadline to stamp out polio by year's end, but other experts are pessimistic.

In Kano, northern Nigeria's largest city, many residents still refuse to have their children vaccinated.

Blair Poised to Win 3rd Term

But British PM's future will depend on how his Labour Party fares

LONDON | Prime Minister Tony Blair urged voters Wednesday not to punish him over the Iraq war and said his government should be judged on its economic achievements.

"The central question of this campaign is which party is best for the future of Britain, which party is best able to run and manage our economy in the interests of hardworking families," Blair said on the last day of campaigning before Thursday's vote for a new Parliament.

Polls suggest Blair will win a third term, defeating Conservative leader Michael Howard — who also supported the Iraq war and whose attacks on Blair's integrity have failed to win over the public.

Analysts are focusing mainly on the key question of how large Blair's Labour Party majority will be. A thin majority for Labour could cause the prime minister to be forced out before the end of his third term because many lawmakers in his own party are unhappy with his decision to join the Iraq war.

Blair has previously said he wants to serve a full third term in office but won't stand for a fourth. Many observers believe Treasury chief Gordon Brown covets the premiership and has struck a deal with Blair to take over at some point.

While Conservatives sought to win votes by promising better health services and to be tough on crime and immigration, Labour pointed to its economic legacy. Blair's party has presided over the nation's longest postwar economic expansion.

Mexico Drops Case Against Politician

Path cleared for mayor of Mexico City to run for president in '06

MEXICO CITY | The Mexican government said Wednesday it was dropping a land expropriation case against popular Mexico City Mayor Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador, clearing the way for the fiery leftist politician to pursue his presidential bid.

Lopez Obrador had fought the investigation with protests and speeches accusing the government of using the charges as a pretext to keep him out of the presidential race — allegations President Vicente Fox denied. Under most interpretations of Mexican law, anyone facing criminal charges cannot run for office.

In a statement Wednesday, the federal attorney general's office said it wouldn't pursue the investigation of the mayor because the law didn't state clearly what sentence he might face if convicted.

Lopez Obrador

Most polls show Lopez Obrador, a leftist known for his handout programs, as a clear presidential front-runner ahead of the 2006 elections. Fox cannot seek another term.

The announcement came as the mayor and Fox are planning to meet on Friday, an encounter seen as a gesture of reconciliation after weeks of public bickering. (AP)

COWTOWN: A policeman and other volunteers try to capture a stray bull in New Delhi on Wednesday. The Delhi High Court has called for the removal of stray cattle from the city's streets. An estimated 28,000 roam the city. The animals are widely revered as holy in this majority Hindu nation.

Israel Vows to Stop Towns' Handover

JERUSALEM | Israel on Wednesday froze the planned handover of West Bank towns to the Palestinians, accusing Palestinian security forces of failing to honor commitments to disarm militants in areas already under their control.

In the West Bank, two Palestinian youths were shot dead by Israeli soldiers. The developments strained the already tense cease-fire.

Palestinian officials called the decision to stop the handovers "unfortunate" and said they had struck a deal to collect militants' arms, despite a top commander's announcement that he had no plans to disarm the gunmen by force. (AP)

GM Shares Buoyed By Kerkorian Offer

Billionaire seeks to boost stake in troubled automaker to 9%

DETROIT | Investors in troubled General Motors were betting Wednesday that 87-year-old billionaire Kirk Kerkorian's surprise proposal to acquire a large stake in the company could be a catalyst for better times at the world's largest automaker.

GM shares soared more than 18 percent Wednesday after Kerkorian's Tracinda Corp. offered to pay almost $870 million for a nearly 5 percent stake. That would boost Tracinda's holdings to about 9 percent and make Kerkorian one of GM's largest shareholders.

GM shares fell to a 10-year low in April after the company reported a $1.1 billion loss for the first quarter. Its sales have slumped in recent months, including those of its most profitable sport utility vehicles.

Tracinda officials said Kerkorian would have no comment beyond the statement released early in the day saying the proposed purchase was for investment purposes only. But his motives prompted speculation that he might desire a controlling stake in the automaker.

Tracinda is the majority owner of casino operator MGM Mirage Inc. It was the largest shareholder in Chrysler when it merged with DaimlerBenz in 1998.

Kerkorian, whose net worth is estimated at $8.9 billion by Forbes, is Tracinda's sole shareholder. (AP)

IBM to Eliminate Up to 13,000 Jobs

NEW YORK | International Business Machines Corp. said Wednesday it would cut between 10,000 and 13,000 jobs and record a pretax charge of up to $1.7 billion in the second quarter.

The majority of the cuts are planned for Europe, where the company began slashing jobs even before it announced its disappointing first-quarter earnings last month. In March, IBM laid off 500 Swedish workers, 9 percent of its work force there, and shut down most operations in five cities.

The cuts were expected and are in line with analysts' estimates. (AP)

83-year-old woman brutally attacked near Foggy Bottom Metro

WASHINGTON | Police were searching Wednesday for a man caught on a surveillance videotape punching, kicking and robbing an elderly woman in Foggy Bottom.

The 83-year-old victim, whose name was not released, was attacked about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday outside a building on 24th St., Northwest, near George Washington University.

Grainy black and white images recorded by a security camera show the man approaching the woman from behind as she pushed her cart into the loading dock of the Potomac Plaza Terrace apartment building, where neighbors said she has lived for more than 30 years.

After a verbal confrontation, the man punched the woman in the jaw, knocking her to the ground. He then continued to hit her in the face. The man took the woman's wallet and other personal property before fleeing, police said.

The woman, who sold everything from T-shirts to umbrellas near the Foggy Bottom Metro station, suffered injuries to her nose, eyes and head. She was in stable condition

Wednesday, authorities said.

Anyone with information about the case was asked to call police at 202-727-9099. A reward of up to $10,000 is offered for information leading to an arrest and conviction.

Rail Delays Decreasing, Metro Says

WASHINGTON | Subway delays decreased in the last five months, Metro said Wednesday. And officials promise to keep working at making it even better.

The transit agency said between December 2004 and April 2005, the reliability of its train service climbed 34 percent. In December, there were an average of nine delays each weekday, lasting at least four minutes. By April, the number of delays was down to an average of six per day.

Metro's Chief Operating Officer for Rail, Steven A. Feil, credits several things, including fewer signal and switch failures, and improvements in some newer subway cars.

The improvements came at a time when Metrorail found itself handling more passengers. Ridership increased 19 percent between December and April, bringing the weekday average to 717,000. (AP)

Mayor Tries to Cap Malpractice Costs

WASHINGTON | Calling the rising cost of medical liability insurance "unacceptable," Mayor Anthony A. Williams urged the D.C. Council on Wednesday to provide some relief for doctors.

He introduced the Health Care Reform Act of 2005, flanked by physicians and other medical officials who said they are being forced to practice elsewhere, making it harder for city residents to get adequate health care

His bill, similar to legislation introduced last year, would cap non-economic damages, provide litigation immunity for health care workers at free clinics and develop a system for reporting medical errors in hospitals. (AP)

Orioles Rally to Avoid Series Sweep

Bedard strikes out 12; Sosa's double keys the comeback in 5-1 win

ORIOLES | The Baltimore Orioles were on the verge of wasting another fine pitching performance when Sammy Sosa delivered his biggest hit since joining the club.

Sosa ended Baltimore's drought of 22 scoreless innings with a two-run double in the eighth inning, and Javy Lopez added a three-run homer to lead the Orioles past the Toronto Blue Jays 5-1 Wednesday.

Erik Bedard (3-1) struck out a career-high 12 batters and allowed one run and four hits in eight innings for the Orioles, who averted a three-game sweep. Baltimore lost the series opener 6-2 in 12 innings and was blanked 1-0 on Tuesday before bouncing back against Toronto ace Roy Halladay.

After the Blue Jays took a 1-0 lead in the top of the eighth, the Orioles rallied.

Halladay (4-2) gave up five runs and 12 hits in 7 1/3 innings. Both his losses this season have come against the Orioles.

STERLING: Erik Bedard nearly lost out on the win despite giving up just one run in eight innings. But the Orioles snapped out of their hitting slump — thanks to big hits by Sammy Sosa and Javy Lopez — in time to defeat the Blue Jays 5-1 on Wednesday.

Tejada had three hits for Baltimore, which avoided its first three-game losing streak of the season. The Orioles stretched their lead in the AL East to three games over Toronto, which came in having won seven of eight.

Bedard gave up only two hits over the first seven innings, but lost his shutout in the eighth.

After Eric Hinske doubled to left, Ken Huckaby sacrificed and John McDonald grounded a hit through the drawn-up infield.

Redskins Give Moss Big Bucks

REDSKINS | Santana Moss and the Washington Redskins agreed to terms on a new contract Wednesday.

"He'll be here tomorrow to work out," team spokesman Patrick Wixted said of Moss, who has not been part of the team's voluntary workouts since coming to Washington in a trade with the New York Jets for Laveranues Coles in March.

The Redskins didn't disclose terms of the deal, but ESPN reports the contract is worth $31 million over six years, and includes an $11 million signing bonus. The contract is voidable to five years if Moss plays a minimum number of offensive snaps. Thus, ESPN said, the contract essentially is a five-year deal worth $26.5 million.

A press conference is scheduled for 1 p.m. at Redskins Park to announce the signing.

Moss is set to start opposite David Patten, another offseason acquisition, this season. (AP)

Hasselbeck Granted Wish for Release

"After having a discussion with Tim after the draft and after having talked with him and his agent, their preference is for Tim to be released from the Redskins to pursue opportunities with other teams," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said.

With Patrick Ramsey now expected to start, Mark Brunell an experienced backup and Campbell on the roster, Hasselbeck was the odd man out. "I appreciate Coach Gibbs and the organization looking out for my best interests," he said. (AP)

All Roads Lead to Bellamy

Steinbrenner's horse tabbed the favorite to win Kentucky Derby

HORSE RACING | Trainer Nick Zito has the favorite for the Kentucky Derby again, this time with Bellamy Road, owned by Yankees boss George Steinbrenner.

Bellamy Road was made the 5-2 favorite for Saturday's richest Derby ever, and drew the No. 16 post Wednesday.

The No. 16 post has worked well in the last decade, producing three Derby winners — Thunder Gulch in 1995, Charismatic in 1999 and Monarchos in 2001.

A full field of 20 3-year-olds was entered for the 1 1/4-mile race, with Afleet Alex the second choice at 9-2. Bandini was the third choice at 6-1.

Bellamy Road is one of five Zito horses in the field, equaling the record by Hall of Famer D. Wayne Lukas in 1996. Lukas won that year, with Grindstone.

Zito's other horses are High Fly at 8-1, leaving from the No. 11 post; Noble Causeway at 12-1 (No. 4 post); Sun King at 15-1 (No. 3); and Andromeda's Hero at 50-1 (No. 2).

Asked how long it took to decide which horse would leave from which gate, Zito said: "Five minutes, a minute for each horse. I wanted Bellamy Road on the outside, and I think we got everything we wanted."

Mets Lose Appeal of Nats' Win

NATIONALS | Major League Baseball denied Wednesday a protest by the New York Mets, who felt the grounds crew at RFK Stadium performed poorly during a rain-shortened loss to the Washington Nationals.

Mets manager Willie Randolph protested Saturday's 5-3 loss based on Rule 4.16, which reads: "A game shall be forfeited to the visiting team if, after it has been suspended, the orders of the umpire to groundskeepers respecting preparation of the field for resumption of play are not complied with."

Rain fell steadily from the fifth inning on, and there were two rain delays before the game was called in the eighth inning. In the eighth, the grounds crew took about half an hour to fully cover the infield because the tarp had been folded improperly. (AP)

Big East and ACC Settle Differences

COLLEGE SPORTS | The Big East and Atlantic Coast conferences have settled their legal differences over school defections with an agreement worth millions that adds nine interconference football games by 2012.

The presidents of Connecticut, Pittsburgh, Rutgers and West Virginia signed off on the agreement, which drops lawsuits between the conferences.

The settlement, obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press, did not specify the monetary amount each Big East school will receive, but a UConn bank statement shows $1 million was deposited in the school's account on April 27 by the law firm charged with disbursing the settlement cash.

Boston College will leave the Big East on June 30 and join the ACC on July 1. Miami and Virginia Tech left the Big East and joined the ACC for the 2004-2005 season. (AP)

Milan will face Liverpool in the final on May 25 in Istanbul, Turkey. Liverpool beat Chelsea 1-0 Tuesday to win the two-leg series 1-0 on aggregate. (AP)

Goldie's Golden Words

Perky actress Goldie Hawn shares her philosophy of life

BOOKS | From the start, Goldie Hawn knew what kind of book she didn't want to write.

No salacious details, no tell-all, behind-the-scenes gossipfest about everyone she's met in the entertainment industry over the last 30 years or so.

The book she did want to write was about her, but would also touch on the things everyone goes through in life.

“I tried to do it in such a way that I didn't feel any different than anybody else,” she said of her memoir, “A Lotus Grows in the Mud.”

“We all share in life's journey, and the emotions that come up and the difficulties that arise because that's what life does.”

The book is roughly chronological, moving from her childhood to her days as a dancer to her acting career, and from her first marriage to her relationship with longtime partner Kurt Russell and her children. But it's less about recounting those events than it is about using particular memories to discuss specific emotions and philosophies.

So the chapter that illustrates her belief in the importance of prayer and faith is about the medical concerns surrounding the birth of her son. To illustrate her feelings about power, she talks about the problems she faced in making the movie “Swing Shift.” Other sections talk about her feelings on success, relationships among siblings, mothers and daughters and facing the death of loved ones.

“I wrote it for anyone who is interested in transformation or transition or understanding that the lotus does grow in the mud,” said Hawn.

The title of the book comes from an encounter she had with a Tibetan monk, who used the example of the lotus as a symbol of the human spirit, and said it could only grow when faced with the challenges and obstacles of life. DEEPTI HAJELA (AP)

THE WAR AT HOME: Mann's “The Forgotten Arm” tells tales out of Vietnam.

Stuck in the '70s

Aimee Mann's new album is sadly short on heart and soul

MUSIC | Aimee Mann's first concept album, “The Forgotten Arm” (SuperEgo), is a little rock, a little folk and a little country — and all of it invokes the 1970s.

It tells the tale of troubled love between John, a Vietnam vet and boxer struggling with addiction, and Southern girl Caroline. Throughout the 12-song album, Mann gives John and Caroline equal airtime to tell their loose story of meeting, embarking on a road trip and dealing with John's destructive addiction.

“Dear John” kicks off the album with a spurt of electric chords, then gives way to Mann singing in her usual detached manner. In a change of pace, she gently dips into a haunting verse followed by a guitar solo that firmly places the listener in the appropriate decade. In “Video,” Mann relates John's depression in a minor key. The character's isolation in “Little Bombs” becomes vivid with Jeff Trott's baritone guitar and Mann's woeful lyrics.

Mann, no stranger to dark themes, is at her best when exploring them between slow acoustic strums and electric guitars, measured key-strokes and experimentation.

But most of the songs have little heart. “Beautiful,” the last on the album, is anticlimactic, lacking the emotion it deserves and falling short of expressing the tenderness and joy of the reunited couple. CLAUDIA DAVILA (AP)

Weddings

For marriages made on Alaskan glaciers, cold feet are normal

The bride wore a curvy, strapless, white satin gown sprinkled with sequins. She also had on tights, sweat pants, rain pants and hefty hiking boots fitted with spikes.

Ken Rose and his wife, Dagmar, of Warrington, Pa., tied the knot two summers ago on an Alaskan glacier. They joined a growing number of people who've made their vows on the Juneau ice field, a 1,500-square-mile expanse of jagged ice and rock that spills into nearly 40 glaciers.

For the folks back home, it might as well be the moon. "Our families thought we were completely nuts," said Rose.

But for this couple, the decision to trade tradition for trekking was an easy one. "The surroundings were unbelievable," said Ken. "It was about us and nature," added Dagmar. It was also about conve-

Diane Pearson runs Pearson's Pond, a bed-and-breakfast near the Mendenhall Glacier. A certified wedding planner, she arranged for the Roses' helicopter flight and an ice field guide, who doubled as a photographer. She brought the cake, champagne and roses. And she married them, thanks to an Alaskan law that allows just about anyone to become a court-appointed marriage commissioner. Pearson married 30 couples last year on a glacier and, she said, the number of clients who say their "I dos" on ice grows every year.

Tom Stewart, whose business is called Weddings on Ice, has performed about 50 glacier weddings in the past three years. He said most of his clients want to escape the hassles of a big wedding.

While some come dressed to kill, Stewart has also seen couples get hitched in hiking gear or matching sweaters. He's seen brides "come in

Some couples stay awhile, such as the Roses. After the ceremony, they spent the day trekking and rappelling into a glacier crevasse before camping on the ice to spend their wedding night under a sky resplendent with northern lights.

In 2003, close to 550 couples traveled to Alaska to get married. Lorene Palmer, of the Juneau Convention and Visitors Bureau, said they get plenty of calls from people asking how to get married on a glacier. "People look for memorable places to commemorate their wedding and getting married in Alaska in and of itself is exciting," she said. ANNE SUTTON (AP)

Kentucky Derby

JOHN SCHEINMAN, who covers racing for the Post, was online Wednesday to discuss Saturday's Kentucky Derby in Louisville, Ky. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Who do you pick to win, place and show?

I like Sun King to win and he will be followed by — in no particular order — High Fly, High Limit, Noble Causeway, Afleet Alex and maybe Bandini and Wilko.

With 40 percent of the horses in the Derby being trained by two trainers, has the relationship between jockey and trainer changed? That is, if I were a jockey on one of Nick Zito's horses, would I listen to the instructions that he gives me on race day?

Well, Zito has really learned some diplomacy this year, hasn't he? He won't be giving instructions beyond good luck probably. Look at his jockeys — these guys like Jerry Bailey know what they're doing. They handicap the race as well as anyone. Strategy will be in their hands.

As a local Kentuckian, I always wonder what the draw is for all the out-of-towners who come here for the weekend for a two-minute race. What do you think draws such huge crowds when the rest of the year we're looked down upon as a backward, redneck state?

Stop having such low self-esteem. Who calls you a redneck? Jeff Foxworthy is just an act! I am always surprised how so many people like to debate bourbon here, but I don't mind. The Derby is America and people want to get to the heart of things and cut through the crap once in a while to the true heart and soul of purity. Horses. You vs. me. Best one wins. It's pure and it is the greatest race — of any kind — in the world. Why not go?

Where is it possible to meet and pet the horses that ran in previous Derbys, Preaknesses and Belmonts?

The Kentucky Horse Park is about the greatest place in the world for that sort of thing. They parade some great champions. The museum, tracing the history of the horse, is the best of its kind.

THE COVER PHOTO of the May 4 Express depicting a U.S. soldier holding a Iraqi child who'd been killed nearly brought me to tears. Over the past two years, the conflict and continuing deaths in Iraq (and often slanted world media coverage of it) have all but erased any American image of being "liberators," creating a sort of segregating line in the sand between Iraqis and the Americans there. But this moving photo removes the "Iraqi" and "American" adjectives and returns to the reality of "human." The Iraq insurgency is not so much fighting the United States, it is fighting Iraq itself and the nation moving forward, and this is the horrifying, pointless human cost.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may feel that you are unable to meet the expectations of your superiors, but you've been placed in a position of great authority.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not about to be fooled by simulations or imitations. If it's the real thing you want, you shall have it — provided you work for it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Resist the temptation to employ underhanded means to achieve your goals. The direct, honest approach will win the day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Faith and trust will be big issues for you. You'll find yourself in the position to insist on better behavior from others as a result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) What attracts others to you may surprise you — but before the day is out you'll be using it to your advantage again and again.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Take your time. You don't want to rush headlong into a situation you neither understand nor appreciate. Bring all your skills to bear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Someone close to you will trust you with a great deal of intimate knowledge. Temptation may be great, but keep a promise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) What begins at a slower tempo will pick up before you know it, demanding a great deal of forethought and inspiration on your part.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be able to engage in a bit of comparison-shopping of your favorite variety. In the end, be more practical than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're likely to be put to the test in an unusual fashion before the day is out. You'll pass with flying colors — and learn something valuable, too.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Take your time, do your homework, and do not proceed irresponsibly. Preparation and forethought make all the difference.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A change of venue may suit your need for inspiration in more than one way. Creative endeavors are favored, particularly after dark.

* NAME: Sarah Finlay GIG: Co-owner of Fusebox Gallery

IN LATE SEPTEMBER 2001, Sarah Finlay and her husband, Patrick Murcia, opened the Fusebox Gallery on 14th Street NW. In its three-plus years of existence, the 1,700-square-foot space has received much critical attention for exhibiting — and representing — the work of such locals as James Hickenpahler, Jason Falchhook and Jason Gubbiotti.

What are you working on now?

In the main exhibition space is a show of paintings by Sylvan Lionni. He's a Corcoran-based painter. All of the paintings in this show are based on stadiums. In his last show, some of the images were derived from New York lottery tickets. He [also] did a big painting on the moveable wall on the gallery and it was the carpet pattern from "The Shining."

Are you looking for something in particular when you select artists?

You have to have that kind of visceral reaction to the work but we're also interested in work that has a very strong conceptual basis.

Is D.C. a very art-oriented place?

We think this is a wonderful city to show work because it's a city of ideas. There are a lot of very well-educated people here; people here are concept-oriented, maybe not as well-versed as, say, in New York in the visual arts but very smart and very open to work that has strong concepts and themes behind it.

Since you opened, 14th Street has turned out to be the cool spot.

It's been almost four years now, and I know of other galleries, some

ART AND ABOUT: Finlay, with gallery co-owner and husband Patrick Murcia, at an opening in their 14th Street art space.

"There are a lot of very well educated people here; people here are concept-oriented."

very established, moved from where they were to where we are which was really a great statement, I think, of our success and the potential for this [to be], really, a lively visual arts corridor.

You've been received very well.

We've had tremendous success. [Fusebox] was the first gallery for both of us. We were very confident that the city needed a really challenging art space. We knew that 14th Street was such a perfect spot for galleries; it's where all the old auto dealerships used to be and it's just the kind of spaces that you find in Chelsea — big, open spaces where people can actually come and spend time and have dialogue about the art. MICHAEL KANIN

Revolution in Rock

The Decemberists bring politics and theatrics to indie rock

MUSIC | These days, every American alt-rocker worth his iPod knows the Pacific Northwest is where it's at. First there was the platinum success of Modest Mouse. Then came Death Cab for Cutie, which just landed a major-label record deal of its own.

Now it's time to make way for the Decemberists. The Portland band's third full-length, "Picaresque," is out now on the renowned indie label Kill Rock Stars. With a Billboard 200 chart entry already under its belt, the album's sales figures are anything but small-time.

The Decemberists are not about to lose their momentum, either: They just launched a four-week headlining tour that hits the 9:30 Club on Friday. Indie-rock upstart Willy Mason, a Bright Eyes protégé, is the opening act.

The Decemberists' first two albums, including 2003's acclaimed "Her Majesty," established frontman Colin Meloy as one of alt-rock's most literate songsmiths. Last year, the University of Montana grad even published a book about being a Replacements fan.

So it's no surprise that Meloy plays a schoolteacher in the band's charming new video, "16 Military Wives." Produced by Death Cab's Chris Walla, the track is an infectious pop shuffle, complete with "Sgt. Pepper's" horns.

Underneath the sunny harmonies, the chorus has a clear "Rock Against Bush" message: "America can't say no/America does if America says it's so." Politics aside, one thing's for sure: Right now, America can't say no to the Decemberists. SEAN RICHARDSON

RHYTHM & GANGSTA: Between the slammin' singles, the MTV series, the movie roles and the porn-video empire, the laid-back Snoop Dogg is keeping busy.

Hot Dogg

Multimedia star Snoop and the zen of hip-hop

MUSIC | More than a decade after he first took the music world by storm with "Doggystyle," Snoop Dogg is everywhere.

On television, with his recent MTV comedy series "Doggy Fizzle Televizzle." On the big screen, with his best role to date in "Starsky & Hutch." And on the pop charts, where "Drop It Like It's Hot" just became the first number-one hit of his illustrious career.

On Sunday, Snoop will be at the Patriot Center for one of the biggest hip-hop shows of the year. The concert is part of his "How the West Was One" tour, sponsored by BET and featuring red-hot rap rookie (and fellow L.A. native) the Game in the opening slot.

"Drop It Like It's Hot" is from the current "R&G (Rhythm & Gangsta): The Masterpiece," Snoop's first album for Geffen. The track is built on an unbeatable combination — loopy catchphrase from Snoop, brash beats from star producers the Neptunes.

That team is on a hot streak that began in 2003 with the lusty smash "Beautiful." Before that, Snoop had spent years trying to find musical collaborators who could live up to the high standards of his original mentor, Dr. Dre.

There's plenty more Snoop/Neptunes magic on "R&G." On the slammin' hit "Signs," Justin Timberlake even drops in to sing a dreamy falsetto chorus.

The new Snoop single, "Ups & Downs," is more lazy Sunday afternoon than giddy Saturday night. In the video, Game shows up to lift weights with his tour-mate at a backyard barbecue.

Snoop may pose as a pimp on the cover of "R&G" but at 33, the father of three has done a good job of leaving his criminal days behind. His 25-year-old opening act, however, still has a nose for trouble.

Game has an upcoming court date related to an alleged altercation, at the Lanham studio of 93.9 WKYS, that took place in January. In February he had a more publicized confrontation — with oft-estranged benefactor 50 Cent — at the Hot 97 studio in New York City.

Game and 50 have since called a truce. Their duet on the bouncy single "Hate It or Love It," from Game's current album "The Documentary," is a smash. And if there's one thing Game can learn from touring with the older, wiser Snoop, it's this: It pays to be a lover, not a fighter.

Autechre taps into the secret thoughts of the silicon set

MUSIC | Unless you move like a spastic android with a couple of 50,000 volt Taser needles in your neck, Autechre doesn't really make dance music.

Sean Booth and Rob Brown design what used to be called "IDM," or "Intelligent Dance Music," back before all the fun-loving manufacturers of idiotic dance music objected to the slur.

Warp Records, home to the long-standing UK duo, has suggested the tag "electronic listening music," which gives as good an idea as any of what's going on inside the headphone concert hall the label's discs are designed for.

In any event, should you find yourself at the Black Cat on Friday night, you don't have to feel self-conscious about staring and nodding your way through Autechre's set.

The team's latest LP, "Untilted," (yes, you read that right), abounds in beats without grooves, as echoing bass bombs and skittering xylophonic chirps nervously circle one another, sizing each other up. Insanely complex percussion programming keeps anything from remaining constant for too long.

THE MUSIC IN YOUR HEAD: Autechre is two guys and a whole lot of little gray cells.

The most accessible track, "Fermium," could be a Geiger counter's love song to the transuranic elements, its particle detector overcome by the radiance of unstable atoms.

Cuts such as "Ipacial Section" and "Augmatic Disport" will have you eavesdropping on electronic conversations, your parabolic mic tuned into the speeches, mantras, conspiracies and arguments of denizens of the digital world.

BARE, SON OF BARE: Dad sang about bad women and tough luck, while the son sings of the same eternals with an indie edge.

A Family Of Outlaws

MUSIC | A great American once sang "Mamas, don't let your babies grow up to be cowboys." But if your pop's name is Bobby Bare — as seen on millions of hit country-western albums — odds are good you'll have honkey tonkin' in the blood. And what child could resist that twangy fate after finding Johnny Cash and George Jones lounging around his '70's Nashville living room?

Not one named Bobby Bare Jr. His band, the Young Criminals' Starvation League, reveals young Nashville royalty rooted in country but flourishing in newer outlaw soil: indie rock. No surprise there. Bands like the Replacements long ago usurped the throne of outlaw American music formerly occupied by Bare Sr. But Bobby Bare the younger currently bears the royal standard, to be planted at Iota on Saturday night.

Bare Jr.'s most recent Bloodshot Records release, "From the End of Your Leash," neatly bridges old Nashville attitude with a college-radio sensibility. Andrew Bird's violin joins the guitar of former Jesus Lizard sandblaster Duane Dennison. The roles of Cash and Jones are played by Will "Palace" Oldham and Frank Black — both recent collaborators. A past release even included a Smiths cover ("What Difference Does It Make").

But the family songcraft is in ample evidence: a fistful of swagger, much hellraising and heartbreak, plus a measure of bleak humor. Pop should be proud.

Bare Jr. may have inherited the family business. But three fearsome words prove that his success was not simply genetically predestined: Lisa Marie Presley.

So it's a relief when horns and steel guitar wind around the blazing guitars to conjure a vision of the old Nashville living room, haunted by those famous voices. Mamas could do a lot worse. BOB MASSEY

Demy, More

FILM | French filmmaker Jacques Demy was his country's last romantic. Upon his death in 1990, none of his compatriots had come close to creating art that approached his berserk, swooning, ultra-Gallic meditations on the demands and limits of love. AFI Silver screens some of the auteur's most unforgettable films this weekend as part of "Demy's Monde: The World of Jacques Demy."

While his dizzying color musicals showed last weekend (and are available on DVD), Demy's "musical without music," the black-and-white masterpiece "Lola," contains both the romantic kernel of these films and the brisk freshness of the New Wave.

Among the little-seen films, Demy's only American project, "The Model Shop," starring Anouk Aimee, is the rarest and potentially most interesting.

AFI is also screening 1970's "Donkey Skin," starring one of Demy's favorite ingenues, Catherine Deneuve, in a color adaptation of the fraught Charles Perrault fairy tale, and "Bay of Angels," starring Jeanne Moreau. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

The Band That Went Away Mad

MUSIC | It was late in the 1980s; punk was dead, metal moribund and pop in its last gasp. All anyone wanted to hear were the new sounds coming out of Manchester, England — delirious, sample-heavy postmodern disco with a sneer and a heart-racing new drug.

Not that the Wonder Stuff cared. The Stourbridge quartet tuned up its guitars and kept up a sardonic rhymed commentary about chicks, fame and the state of the world, all set to assaultive sonic levels. Rock had not died, even if the Wonder Stuff seemed intent on beating it to death.

Its sound never caught on state-side, and band members gave up the ghost (and cut their precious hair) in 1994. Still, the Stuff is back with a new album and the same scabrous wit. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

At Oprah's presentation, she probably won't give out any cars, but she will dispense motivational wisdom.

Oprah has moved past icon to demigoddess for the average woman. Yet she convinces legions of fans every afternoon that she's just like them and understands their every struggle.

To this end, Oprah will draw on experiences from her own life, injecting her trademark folksy, self-deprecating humor. But beware the banalities, such as this one from the 2003 tour: "The universe can dream a bigger dream than you can dream for yourself." ERIN TROMPETER

The Smithsonian Associates spell out the history of sorcery

LECTURE | Wiccan rites. Wiccan rights. Harry Potter. The mysterious ongoing syndication of "Broom-Hilda." No doubt about it, these are witchy times.

What of the mid-'70s, you say? "Rhiannon" and "Witchy Woman" on the AM. "Race With the Devil" and "The Devil's Rain" at the drive-in. They were just testing the waters for today's pagan renaissance.

But how about the witch fever that, starting in the late 1400s, gripped Old and New World Europeans for 200 years? In a Saturday seminar titled "Terror of History: Witches in the Western Tradition," UCLA professor Teofilo F. Ruiz will cast the cold, harsh light of rationality on periods and practices that heretofore have been illumined by only the glimmer of guttering candles.

The daylong witch-a-thon starts at 10 a.m., with an hour of historical contextualizing and another hour outlining "the evolution of the witch craze." From 12:15 to 1:30 p.m., attendees will "provide their own lunch." It would not be inappropriate to conjure yours out of thin air.

Should you fail, listen up during an exploration of the "Compendium Maleficarum," the 15th-century's answer to "How to Cook Everything."

After touring London, Essex, and Salem, Ruiz will wrap up by asking, "Have We Outgrown the Terror of History?" We're guessing yes, but it could be just a lull before Swiffer-straddling sorceresses are persecuted by tiki-torch-bearing mobs. GLENN DIXON

53 Reasons to Go Out Tonight

Magician Ricky Jay is playing with a full deck and then some

OUT & ABOUT | You haven't seen what a regular playing card is capable of until you see a man bisect a watermelon with it.

Not that that particular feat — of what? Brute strength? Infinite, absurd hours of practice? Let's call it prowess — is the most effective weapon in the holster of one Ricky Jay, actor, writer, archivist and sleight-of-hand magician extraordinaire. He has many more tricks up his sleeve (or somewhere) in his show, "Ricky Jay and His 52 Assistants," opening at Studio Theatre this weekend.

Jay is an old-fashioned prestidigitator — he first emerged, blinking, into the spotlight as the subject of a 1993 New Yorker profile. Not for him the employment of twins (oops — was that a secret?), the smoke-and-mirrors techniques (Sorry!) and concealed contraptions (dang! Did we do it again?) of his Vegas compatriots. He works the card magic right in your face, and if you live to be 100, you'll never know how he made all those queens appear.

This show premiered off-Broadway in 1994 to the astonishment of New York's culture vultures and collected an Obie award. Not only had he proved himself a man handy with a five or so aces, he has been cast in films and TV shows for his humble demeanor, which is, as any showman knows, part of the act.

So pick a card, any card. Jay's mind-bending show will make a chump of any fool who's paid for the privilege. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

To Live and Hate in L.A.

'Crash' follows, and tangles, the threads of disparate lives

RACE AND REALITY | In Hollywood, inspiration can come from anywhere. For Paul Haggis, writer of the Oscar-winning "Million Dollar Baby," the idea for his movie "Crash" was sparked by a carjacking.

Haggis was held up at gunpoint in 1991 and never saw his car again. The event led him to consider the lives of his attackers. Who were they? Where did they live? What led them to steal cars? It also made him contemplate his own urban isolation. That became the basis for "Crash," a film about racism, which he co-wrote with longtime friend Bobby Moresco.

As Haggis and Moresco began writing the script, they created characters of different races, economic backgrounds and cultures whose lives collide one fateful weekend in Los Angeles. Why L.A.? Because it's one of the most segregated large cities in the country, the writers explain, owing partly to its car culture and its vast, largely homogeneous neighborhoods.

The movie hypothesizes that it's only when they literally crash into each other that they are forced to recognize and deal with others. Despite the specific setting, the filmmakers say the film has a universal message about intolerance.

Haggis assembled an all-star cast that includes Sandra Bullock, Don Cheadle, Matt Dillon, Brendan Fraser, Terrence Howard, Larenz Tate, Thandie Newton, Ryan Phillippe and rap artist Chris "Ludacris" Bridges as a philosophical carjacker.

Though the material is volatile it also addresses underlying social issues that many of the actors feel need to be addressed. Some audience members will be uncomfortable with the subject matter. And that is exactly the filmmakers' intent.

"One of the things this movie touches on is the duality of man," said Phillippe. "We all possess the darkness and the light. It's about when we choose to use it. I don't think we're all good or all bad."

→ 48-Hour Film Fest

It's May Madness as the winners of this guerilla-art race-against-the-clock enjoy the fruits of their labors at six screenings, the last two of which are Thursday night. The film fest's "best-of" night is May 19. AFI Silver, 8633 Colesville Road, Silver Spring; 301-495-6700.

→ Adapted From LeCarre:

Here's a trivia game for cinephiles: Match the title of the spy film with the John LeCarre novel it was adapted from. This Sunday, see Sidney Lumet's 1966 "The Deadly Affair" and be tormented trying to remember ... OK, it's "Call for the Dead." We're such softies. AFI Silver, 8633 Colesville Road, Silver Spring; 301-495-6700.

→ The Films of Edward Yang Taipei personalities, rejoice. On Mario's film "Baadasssss" wouldn't have happened without dad Melvin.

Friday, the Freer and Sackler screen "Taipei Story"; on Sunday it's "A Brighter Summer Day," Yang's epic (237-minute) masterpiece about a 1961 murder case and Taiwan's emerging identity. 12th Street and Independence Avenue SW; series through May 22, free; 202-633-4880.

→ An Evening With Melvin and Mario Van Peebles

Father-and-son filmmakers Melvin and Mario Van Peebles will be on hand to screen the ficti-doc "Baadasssss!," a film by Mario about Melvin's struggle to make a 1967 blaxploitation classic. Hirshhorn Museum, Ring Auditorium, Independence Avenue and 7th Street SW; free with reservations; 202-287-3382.

Pick Your Poison

Going Out | Cinco de Mayo

Historical fact: Cinco de Mayo celebrates the day in 1862 that the Mexican army defeated the French at the Battle of Puebla. Now, on to the drinking!

ANDALE (401 7th St. NW; 202-783-3133). With one of the best tequila selections in Washington, it's no surprise that this Penn Quarter restaurant has developed three special drinks for Cinco de Mayo, in addition to the restaurant's usual happy hour with half-priced margaritas, wine and draft beer. Diners also get a special menu for the evening. Entertainment comes from a mariachi band.

CHIEF IKE'S MAMBO ROOM (1725 Columbia Road NW; 202-332-2211). Bloggers-cum-DJs Bluestate provide the indie-rock and '80s love at DCist's Cinco de Mayo party. Doors open at 7 p.m., and the all-night drink specials include $3 bottles of Corona, Pacifico and domestic (American) beers; $4 rail drinks; and $5 margaritas and Jose Cuervo and Sauza tequila drinks.

CARIBBEAN BREEZE (4100 Fairfax Drive, Arlington; 703-812-7997). Possibly the only Cinco de Mayo party with a live reggae band, the Ballston restaurant skips Red Stripe specials for discounted Mexican beers ($2.95 Corona and Dos Equis) and margaritas; pay $4.95 for a basic drink, $5.95 for top shelf. Music begins at 6 p.m.

DON PABLO'S (13050 Fair Lakes Shopping Center, Fairfax; 703-222-9770). What comes to mind when you think of Cinco de Mayo? How about an '80s cover band playing at a Mexican chain restaurant in a large suburban shopping center? Party DC's Cinco de Mayo Fest brings the Legwarmers — the area's best '80s tribute act — to the parking lot of the Fair Lakes branch of Don Pablo's, along with Jackie Gino and 8 Track Jones. The indoor-outdoor event features music outdoors from 5 to 10 p.m., followed by dancing to a DJ inside the restaurant until

An endless sea of fancy tequilas awaits the patrons of Penn Quarter's Andale.

2 a.m. Early admission is $5, rising as the night goes on.

DREAM (1350 Okie St. NE; 202-216-9074). DC101 is sponsoring an 18-and-over party at the upscale Northeast nightclub. You can try to win free admission from the radio station, or you can go to www.dcdream.com and click on "Free Pass." You can print out a coupon good for free admission before 11 p.m. and an open bar from 9 to 10 p.m. Those under 21 can use the pass for $5 admission.

FIVE (1214-B 18th St. NW; 202-331-7123). Expect all three levels of the club — including the tropical-themed rooftop — to be crowded with folks sipping $2 Coronas or munching on a free Mexican buffet. Music comes from a roving mariachi band and DJs spinning salsa and other dance music. Admission is $15, or $10 if you RSVP to one of the myriad organizations throwing the party, including latinvip.com, euronetinternational.com and y3h.org. Doors open at 5:30 p.m.

LULU'S (1217 22nd St. NW; 202-861-5858). Activities will range from a tequila-drinking contest to salsa lessons to whacking piñatas full of cash. There are cultural performances, too, including mariachis, live music by Orquesta Latin Soul and five groups demonstrating various folk and salsa dances. Doors open at 5 p.m. for a free Mexican buffet, and dance lessons begin at 6:30 p.m. A $10 cover is in effect all night, and El Zol (99.1 FM) provides the music.

OYAMEL (2250 Crystal Drive, Arlington; 703-413-2288). Live Mexican music and folk dancing are the highlights of Oyamel's party, although discounted tequila and Jose Andres' special avocado-based menu sound pretty good, too. Entertainment runs from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.; if the weather co-operates, the celebration moves outside to the restaurant's patio.

ROCK BOTTOM BETHESDA (7900 Norfolk Ave., Bethesda; 301-652-1311). To commemorate Cinco de Mayo, Rock Bottom brewer Geoffery Lively has made a limited batch of Jalapeno beer. It sounds unpalatable, but a manager assured us that free samples will be available, because "this beer is so unique" that patrons should try before they buy. (If you like your lagers spicy, pints are $2 all day.) FRITZ HAHN (WASHINGTONPOST.COM)

Eating Around

SPECIALS

Eat Until the Insanely Expensive Cow Comes Home

We crave meat at all times. We often crave expensive meat. Unfortunately, our landlords crave rent checks. CHARLIE PALMER STEAK has made things a little easier (although just a little) by extending its April special — a five-course tasting menu for $114 — through Memorial Day. The price covers not only wine, but also a final course featuring Wagyu, a type of aged beef (similar to Kobe beef) that typically costs more than $100 a pound. The menu also includes bass, rabbits and pork, so you can eat your way around the farm.

EDUCATION

Carbs Are Our Friends

It would seem that a class designed to teach pasta cooking would be pretty short: 1. Boil water. 2. Dump pasta in water. 3. Burn fingers and mouth while testing pasta. Apparently there's more to it than that. TasteDC.com's PASTA, PASTA, PASTA cooking class will cover the preparation of homemade pasta from flour to noodle and will lead into a lunch featuring such dishes as penne with vodka sauce and smoked salmon, cappellini with Bolognese sauce, lasagna and cannoli. There's wine, too. K.P.K.

L'Appetito Ristorante, 5105 MacArthur Blvd. NW; Sat., May 7, noon-2:30 p.m., $65; 202-244-3700 or tastedc.com for reservations.

EDUCATION

Make Mom Breakfast; Ask for Curfew Extension

Teenagers in the kitchen can be a scary thought. Instructor Amanda Kotval aims to improve teens' culinary abilities (and their sucking-up skills) with MOTHER'S DAY BRUNCH FOR TEENS, a hands-on cooking class at Sur La Table in Arlington. Recipes include oatmeal, walnut, and banana pancakes, egg and sausage soufflé, and summer fruit salad with mint sugar. Maybe she'll even teach them to clean up the kitchen when they're through. K.P.K.

Sur La Table, 1101 S. Joyce St., Arlington; Sat., May 7, 10:30 a.m., $45; 703-414-3580 for reservations. (Pentagon City)

THURSDAY

It's Cinco de Mayo. To avoid all the tequila-shot craziness, we recommend a trip over to REPUBLIC GARDENS' new R&B Thursdays. According to the flyer, there's no cover until 9 p.m., when an hour-long open-bar period begins and After Hours takes the stage.

FRIDAY

Buzz/Cubik/Sting/etc. founder and all-around superstar DJ Scott Henry celebrates his birthday with a special Bit O'Honey set of classic dance tracks on the patio at NATION. (Working on your birthday? That sounds rough.) To celebrate, the Cubik crew is firing up the grills on the two-level deck. Inside, buzz-worthy Brazilian drum 'n' bass Marky V takes control.

Herndon's annual outdoor FRIDAY NIGHT LIVE! concert series kicks off tonight with the modern-rock cover band JunkFood. Just bring a blanket and chill out.

Afterward, wander a short distance over to JIMMY'S OLD TOWN TAVERN, where a DJ spins dance music all night.

It seems like any DJ who plays WONDERLAND can do no wrong — the place is consistently filled with an energetic crowd of young party people. It's one of those spots that's become a scene of its own. Still, we'd bet that a DJ Eurok set at this popular Columbia Heights destination might elevate the excitement levels. He'll be dropping rare grooves, hip-hop, reggaeton and more, no cover and no hassle.

SATURDAY

If you can't make it to Millionaire's Row at Churchill Downs, we can't BUSMAN'S BIRTHDAY: DJ Scott Henry spins grooves on his own birthday. Locals scenesters will give him a party to remember Friday night on the patio at Nation.

think of a better place to watch the 131st Kentucky Derby than the WILLARD HOTEL'S ROUND ROBIN BAR's annual Bonnets and Bowties party. Besides the ponies (and the buffet), the star attraction is bartender Jim Hewes' mint juleps, the best in town. Doors open at 4 p.m.; post time is 6:05.

The most recent emerging star to bound forth from the fertile talent incubator of the Roots camp is Martin Luther. Take the vocal sensibilities of a gospel singer, put him in the gym to get diesel for the ladies, strap on a Stratocaster and you've got the makings of the soul scene's newest R&B rock star. Catch him with Oktbrwrl and the Sentiment at THE BLACK CAT.

SUNDAY

CABANAS is a new restaurant at Georgetown's Washington Harbour, and it's jumping into the social scene with Sunday Sessions — just in time for patio season. Each week features local live music talent of the acoustic or jazz variety, followed by a DJ. The tunes, schmooze and food and drink specials run from 6 p.m. to midnight and there's no cover.
